

Garry Crittenden's Catto Nero d'Avola
The Wine Front
93/100

The Crittenden winemaking family pay homage to the Catt family of Adelaide with this nero release. This seems to be quite a personal project for Garry Crittenden, and you get a booklet with the wine explaining his significant (and often overlooked) influence on/over and deep history with Italian grape varieties in Australia. Great stuff.

Juicy, spicy, red cherry, kirsch, Righteous start. Flesh and crispness in the palate, tasty lil number with vibrancy and clarity on its side. Very nero vibes. It's a ripping drink.
